VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

★ sore (それ).

This is the word for "that" in Japanese. Remember that the word for "this" is kore (これ).

★ niku (肉).

This is the word for "meat" in Japanese.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Asking Whether Something or Someone Is Okay.

Niku wa daijōbu desu ka?

肉は大丈夫ですか？

"Is meat okay?" (Can you eat meat?)

One question you will hear a lot in Japanese is: Daijōbu desu ka? This phrase literally means "Is it okay?" or "Are you okay?" (depending on the situation), but it is very versatile! Asking whether something "is okay" in Japanese can mean a variety of things. If you are asking whether a certain type of food or drink is okay, it can mean "Can you eat/drink this?" Asking whether a certain time or day is okay means "Is that time/day convenient for you?" Using daijōbu desu ka just by itself directly to someone will usually mean "Are you okay?" Let's take a look at how to use this very versatile phrase!

Asking Whether Something or Someone is Okay

★ Sentence Pattern:

[A] wa daijōbu desu ka?

"Is [A] okay?" / "Are you okay with [A]?"

In this pattern, A = the item you are asking about (asking whether it is okay).

Now, let's make some sentences using this pattern:

A	wa daijōbu desu ka?	"English"
Niku ("Meat")	wa daijōbu desu ka?	"Is meat okay?" ("Can you eat meat?")
Sakana ("Fish")	wa daijōbu desu ka?	"Is fish okay?" ("Can you eat fish?")
Osake ("Alcohol")	wa daijōbu desu ka?	"Is alcohol okay?" ("Can you drink alcohol?")
Kyō ("Today")	wa daijōbu desu ka?	"Is today okay?" (for making plans, etc.)
Ashita ("Tomorrow")	wa daijōbu desu ka?	"Is tomorrow okay?" (for making plans, etc.)

To ask whether something is okay, you can use this whole sentence pattern, putting the thing you are talking about in place of [A]. But if you want to ask someone directly whether he or she is okay (for example, "Are you okay?" when someone doesn't look well or hurts himself or herself), you don't need [A] wa; you can simply ask Daijōbu desu ka?

For Example:

1. (situation: B trips and falls)

A: 大丈夫ですか？

Daijōbu desu ka?

"Are you okay?"

B: はい。大丈夫です。

Hai. Daijōbu desu.

"Yes. I'm okay." / "I'm fine."

2. (situation: A's dog barks at B)

A: 犬は大丈夫ですか？

Inu wa daijōbu desu ka?

"Are dogs okay?" ("Are you not scared of them, allergic, etc.")

Examples from This Dialogue

1. にくはだいじょうぶですか？

Niku wa daijōbu desu ka?

"Is meat okay? (Can you eat meat)"
